

Look, Up In The Sky For Glendale Fireworks July 2

It's shots of rapid-fire action: Fireworks flash before your eyes faster than a speeding bullet in jaw-dropping wavelengths of violet, blue, yellow, purple, green, orange and red. They leap tall buildings in a single bound then rain out of the sky with tails the color of spring peonies.

Yes, it's the City of Glendale's Fireworks Show, symbol of Independence Day and one of the oldest and largest in the Valley. So change the course of your plans to be where you can view these powerful pyrotechnics on Thursday, July 2, at dusk (generally 9-9:30 p.m.).

Families and friends gather at eateries, bars, patios and porches from LoDo to the Dam to view the dazzling display. Best places for watching are north of Virginia, south of Cherry Creek Drive South, west off Colorado Blvd. and east of Cherry St. Many families gather in and around the parking lots at CitySet and at Glendale's Whole Foods for close-in viewing. This year Four Mile Historic Park is also offering an Independence Celebration with games, live music plus perfect viewing of Glendale's Fireworks. Make your plans in advance because once Glendale lights the fuse, the entire Cherry Creek Valley comes to a stop to watch the show. Information: 303-759-1513 or www.glendale.co.us. (Rain date: Saturday, July 18.)

When Guarding Resembles Hiding

Colorado goes simply by "Unknown." Naming a child this might be the equivalent of being born with a winning lottery ticket. Before an enterprising new mother or father capitalizes on this idea though, Colorado should use Mr. or Mrs. Unknown's funds to revamp its website to actually resemble one operated by Robin Hood instead of the Sheriff of Nottingham. The citizens of Colorado — and the state itself — might then have a fighting chance at spending happily ever after with their property.

Mr. Hallinan pursues happiness with his family in Douglas County, Colorado. In his free time and amid more exciting hobbies, he enjoys helping reunite people with their missing property.

Mad Peaches Brings Back The "WOW Factor" With Injectable Rejuvenations!

Regardless of what beauty companies want you to believe, there is no such thing as a cream or lotion that will instantly "lift" or "firm" the skin with application. But there are products that can be injected into the skin to produce dramatic improvements. Mad Peaches uses a combination of injectable fillers, such as Botox, to enable lines to be minimized or erased, and sagging skin to be lifted.

"With injectable products, you can dramatically improve your appearance without the downtime of surgery," explains Kelly Buckley, PA-C. "Middle-aged people who have mild jowls, volume loss, vertical lip lines, crow's feet, lines along the side of the nose and chin can benefit greatly. Also, injectable products can correct asymmetries and even those bands in the neck below the chin that become prominent with age, hence the MP Nefertiti Lift."
